

Professor Antonio TOSCANO, MD is Professor of Neurology at the University of Messina, Italy, and Secretary General of the European Academy of Neurology (EAN). An internationally recognized expert in neuromuscular and neurogenetic disorders, his research focuses on rare neuromuscular diseases, metabolic myopathies, mitochondrial disorders, and peripheral neuropathies. He has authored more than 300 scientific publications and has played a leading role in advancing research, education, and international collaboration in neurology.